

Jonas Öberg will present the background and current status of the SELF project, an international project funded by the European Commission that aims to provide a platform for the collaborative sharing and creation of educational materials about Free Software and Open Standards. It will offer a platform for the evaluation, adaptation, creation and translation of such materials and the production process will be based on the organisational model of Wikipedia.